Manufacturing Engineering –Systems Option (MfgE-SYS)

Manufacturing engineers design processes and facilities for making the many products that we take for granted. They choose the best way to make a product — and develop the necessary machining tools, automation procedures, and quality control workflows. Oregon State’s MFGE-SYS program is closely aligned with industry. Students can also choose a dual major with industrial engineering.

Examples of what MFGE engineers can do:

- Developing new sensor technologies for energy efficient freeze drying of ice cream
- Designing silicon chip manufacturing processes to reduce cost and improve product quality
- Implementing laser cutting and welding for producing rock-climbing equipment
- Identifying the most cost-effective facility layout for composite aircraft manufacturing

Your Bachelor’s Degree (BS) in the College of Engineering

- A minimum of 180 credits are required for graduation; 60 must be upper division (300 and 400-level courses).
- A maximum of 135 credits earned at a community college may be applied toward a bachelor’s degree at OSU.
- Some courses can count towards your major and the Baccalaureate Core. Advisors can assist in selection.
- Other options available: Product Development (not required)
